Table of Contents

Foreword by H.E. Sheikh Abdullah Bin Mohammed Al Salmi ........................................ 7
Introduction by the Editors ................................................................. 9

Chapter 1: Silk Roads between China and Oman. A Preliminary Study

Duan Qing: Hermes Depicted by Scythians or Sakas ................................................. 19
John W. Chaffee: Arab Merchants in Middle Period China ......................................... 27
Eric Staples: Intersections within Arabic and Chinese Navigational Literature: Star-Altitude Measurements ................................................................. 49
Luo Lin: The Sohar Ship: Cultural Symbol and Spiritual Impetus for the Belt and Road Initiative ................................................................. 61
Wang Xiaofu: Early Oman and China Relations Studies .............................................. 65

Chapter 2: Oman and Asia. Networks of Communication and Exchanges

Valeria Piacentini Fiorani: The Silk Route, a Tenuous Whirling Line Between Past and Present: The Manṣūra Emirate and Its Outlet to the Sea, Daybul (9th–10th Centuries) .......... 71
Stratos Karakitsos: Chinese Porcelains Embedded in Omani Miḥrābs. International Trade and Cultural Relations ................................................................. 121
Junya Shinohe: Silk Road of Japan via China in the 7th Century and the Concepts of Grace, Islam, and Ibāḍī Muslims in a Structural Analysis of the Teaching of Islam .......... 145
Seiji Morimoto: The Cultural Interactions between the Middle East and Japan through the Silk Road ................................................................. 151
Wang Yujie: On the Islamic Sects in China ............................................................. 157

Chapter 3: Ibāḍī Religious Communities and Knowledge Transmission

Ersilia Francesca: Cross-Boundary Knowledge in Early Ibāḍism: Exchanges, Religious Authority and Knowledge Transmission ................................................. 165
Adam Gaiser: Exploring Discursive Networks: The Case of “Adhering to the Community” (Luzūm al-Jamāʿa) Narrations Among Early Ibāḍīs .................................................. 173
Miklos Muranyi: Retracing Qatāda’s al-Nāsikh wa-l-Mansūkh in Early Ibāḍī Sources ................................................................. 179
Farhat Jaabiri: A Personal Narrative of a Maghribī-Ibāḍī Religious Lineage ............ 191
Yohei Kondo: Rāshid b. Umayra l-Rustāqī and Medical Treatment in 16th-Century Oman ................................................................. 197
Amal N. Ghazal: Transmission of Ibāḍī Knowledge: Between China and Oman .......... 209
Hilal al-Hajri: What Is the Purpose of the Chinese Phoenix in Oman’s Mosques? ....... 213
The Authors ................................................................. 225
Index of Qur’anic Verses .................................................. 231
Index of Proper Names .................................................... 233
Index of Arabic Terminology ............................................. 243